

Tips for Young Artists Seeking Cheap Way to go

"We are a young couple. Not much money. Hobby, painting. Vacation hopes. France. How to do it cheapest way please?"

Icelandic Airlines, New York City, is the only bronco, cut-rate airline. The town you want is Honfleur on the Normandy coast. About three hours by train from Paris. Get in a pension (boarding house with meals). Or try a hotel there called Le Chat Noir. And get pension rates.

This is a wonderful old seaside town. Cobble streets. Old stone fortress buildings. (All the French explorers of North America sailed from here.) Wonderful stone harbor full of fishing boats. Great sea food. And fairly inexpensive for France.

For transportation along the coast, rent bikes. To cut still further, this part of the coast—they call it "the green coast"—is full of campgrounds where you pay a very small fee.

"Can you tell me if a young Negro couple will run into problems in Europe?"

As near as I can see, you don't find any discrimination in Europe. With an occasional exception in England—and that in feeling rather than action. However, these things can be pretty subtle and I really don't know. I would like to be told by someone who has done it.

"How much does it cost to rent bicycles in Europe?"

I paid 35 cents a day in Ireland three years ago. About a dollar a day in France two years ago. That might give you an idea. However, these were ordinary bikes. Not the multi-gear touring bikes.

Friend of mine who biked in Europe suggests buying one—for not less than $30—and shipping it home. That's a three-speed bike. Four is better with Alpine gears. You should buy about $15 worth of public liability and loss insurance.

Your best maps are from Michelin (the French tire company). They give you the steepness of grades in little arrow symbols. You can avoid pumping up steeper hills. And here's a good address where you can get routing, cheaper hotels, restaurants etc. — Federation de Cyclotourisme at 66 Rue Rene Boulanger, Paris 10. There's a small membership fee.

Better ride a bike for a month before you go to Europe. Or you'll spend half your vacation nursing aching muscles you didn't know were there.

"What clothing to wear in Nassau please?"

The Caribbean and British outposts particularly are dressy. Sports clothing but dressy. It isn't the casual mumu or aloha shirt you find in Hawaii.

"We will be touring Japan. Is there a way to go to a real geisha party?"

Kyoto is the best town and the traditional home of the geisha schools. Your hotel should be able to set this up for you. Most local tours have a sort of sanitized geisha party. But why not have your own?

You get a room at a tea house—a machiai. Have the hotel reserve it and have dinner. Have them book a couple of geishas—they come from a central casting agency. You get the dinner. The girls dance. Make conversation with the latest jokes and giggle and sing. About $30 per person for a first class evening. Yes, you can take your wife.

"Once you mentioned the cats of Rome. Where do you see them?"

Roman cats date back so far that no one knows where they started. They don't belong to anybody. But people come down and feed them. You'll find dozens of them in the evening around the Colosseum. Lots of them around the Pantheon—my choice because there's a nice outdoor cafe across the piazza where you can sit and drink a capuccino.
